Manifesto

Without review articles the scientific world would be lost. No one can keep up with the thousands of new articles published daily and stay up to date on the latest developments. To restrict the liberty of scientists to publish their work is not a valid solution to this problem!

We demand appreciation for all those who jump into the vast ocean of new publications, citing and reporting them. The fruits of this work are review articles. These are a great help for all who start working on a new topic or who simply want to stay informed about new developments.

Overview articles are useful and valuable, but cost a lot of time and work. Should they only be published by invitation? Everyone can do their share to bring light into the chaos of worldwide publication.

So join us today in our journal Overview of Science, and send us your articles, no need to wait for an invitation!
